Comments
Andrew Sipes is one of the best teachers I have had at UNC. He is so kind and will go way out of his way to ensure that his students understand what they are doing in this class.
He was an excellent teacher and was always willing to help me when I need it. He responded quickly to email and gave great support during this time.
I think Andrew Sipes is great but sometimes felt that he gave demos that were not useful. I wish he asked students what would be useful to them or not, especially since going online. However, he really knows his stuff and will go so far out of his way to help students! Awesome!
Andrew is one of the most supportive instructors I have ever had in my time at UNC. He not only was always making himself available for office hours and after class one–on–one time, but also created a classroom environment where anyone would feel comfortable asking for help and not having all the answers. Couldn't have been better supported throughout this course and during the online transition time.
Andrew was such a great instructor to work with. He clearly is both knowledgable and passionate about this subject, and he wants his students to succeed. He makes himself as available as possible to students for help, feedback, and support, and encourages them to explore further beyond what he teaches in class.
He was there and open whenever we needed him at any time of the day. Always willing to help and spend hours after class to make sure we feel comfortable with the material. Also just checked in on how we were as human beings which was really appreciated.
Great professor — kind, understanding and patient!
